The Triumph of Death

Bruegel "the Elder" Pieter. 1562 – 1563. Oil on panel.
Museo del Prado. Madrid. Spain.

The painting on the cover depicts a customary theme in medieval literature: the dance of Death. All of the social institutions are included in this composition and neither power nor devotion can save them. It is just a matter of time. Some attempt to struggle against their inevitable destiny while others are resigned to their fate. Only a pair of lovers, at the lower right, seem to remain unmoved by the current course of events. However, in the future they too will have to suffer.
